Narrative Description of Property: This 2 story wood framed home was built approx. 1870, in the Gothic Revival style. The façade overlooks the village from a bird's eye view. The façade has a center gable (with decorative cross truss) with steep sloping roof line which intersects the larger center roof with side gables. The center gable has paired dbl hung narrow windows that are pointed arched. The rest of the second floor windows are also paired but not pointed. The first story windows are not narrow, paired, or decorative and rather ordinary. There is a full front porch supported by square tapered columns. There is a large square bay window on the east elevation whose roof extends to a east side porch. The rear second floor has eyebrow windows on the west and a small pedimented dormer on the east.

Significance: The criteria of eligibility are associated to Criterion A & C (Properties significant for their association in or linkage to events and architecture/artistic value) for its significance to the history of Northville, important because of its association to overall setting and sense of place this home provides, the establishment of the life of J.S. Barker and his positive effect of the village, and mostly this is an excellent example of a Gothic Revival in the village. There is no other house like this one in the entire town.

J.S. Barker was a dealer of oysters, newspapers, and fish and served as the village clerk for 6 years (Russell).
